Think internationalization at universities without borders!

The 12th International Week hosted by Faculty 3 – Business and Law represents a particularly special event in many ways – after a long period of pandemic, we all want to meet again in person, to continue a living tradition. But one thing is different: we have changed our concept! We would like to work with you on future-oriented topics and issues concerning the internationalization of universities, going beyond the classic semester abroad, student exchange model. The International Week 2023 in Frankfurt am Main will be held under the theme: "The International Class". We are convinced that new opportunities are emerging from online teaching, which has developed worldwide, with courses, projects revolving around practical case studies and workshops being developed together with international partners and conducted completely or partially online. This innovative format enables students and teachers to collaborate internationally with fellow students and colleagues for a few weeks, entire semesters or in specific modules.

So this time around you can look forward to an intensive field-specific program that will include joint workshops and exciting discussion rounds, enabling the valuable exchange of experiences, all with the aim of analysing and evaluating various possibilities and making them suitable for cooperation. The professional program will be complemented by a short but nonetheless pleasurable leisure program called “Typically Frankfurt”.

You will receive an official invitation from us in February 2023.

Program details, as well as online registration and tips for booking your hotel will be made available in February 2023 at:
